Success begins with effective management.
Effective management begins with expert training.

Strong management skills are the foundation on which nonprofits build successful programs. So IFF's Management Education programs provide the training and support nonprofits need to achieve their own specific missions and goals.

The Chicago Project for Social Entrepreneurs helps nonprofits:

- Learn and apply the principles of social entrepreneurship
- Energize and revitalize their organizations
- Achieve the right balance of mission and money. [\[more\]](#)

The Center for Early Education Management and Finance was created in partnership with the McCormick Tribune Foundation. For three years, from early 2000 through 2002, The Center has helped participating nonprofits as it:

- Taught them ways to improve management and operations
 - Showed them how to free up resources that can be invested in hiring and retaining qualified staff
 - Helped them build on the value of their most important asset: people.
